THE NEXT HOUSE RULES OF TARIFF

Representatives at Washington and the Speaker.

FIGURING ON REED'S SUCCESSOR

Politicians Comment on Course of the Czar—The Legal Connection He Has Made.

WASHINGTON.—The retirement of Speaker Reed from Congress means a reorganization of the next House on Administration lines and the election of a Speaker who will be in entire sympathy with President McKinley and his policies.

Fully half a dozen candidates will contest for the position to be vacated by Mr. Reed and the campaign will be inaugurated at once, as the possibility of Congress being convened in extra session in September or October makes the situation all the more interesting. Representative James S. Sherman of New York, Representative J. A. Hopkins of Illinois, Representative W. P. Hepburn of Iowa, Representative Charles H. Grosvenor of Ohio, Representative D. B. Henderson of Iowa and Representative John Dalzell of Pennsylvania are included in the list of actual and possible candidates.

General Grosvenor, the acknowledged spokesman of the administration on the floor, is not likely to become an active candidate unless the exigencies of the situation demand it. Representative James Sherman of New York and Representative A. J. Hopkins of Illinois are the two strongest candidates in the race. As has been heretofore announced in the press, Mr. Reed now intends to wield all the influence he possesses to land Sherman. He will try to throw to him the solid support of the New England Congressmen and get as many votes for him in New York as he can.

The decision of Mr. Reed to give up public life for the purpose of resuming the practice of law gives great satisfaction to the administration. It will enable the President to carry his policies through the House without opposition, and as the Senate is strongly Republican, he is assured, in advance of the meeting of Congress, that White House suggestions will be equivalent to demands upon Congress next winter. Had Mr. Reed remained in Congress he would have found his powers curtailed and his heretofore absolute domination gone. His successor will not have half the power that has been his in the past.

Politicians here say Speaker Reed's retirement from Congress just now is the best possible play he could make for the Presidency. It is taken for granted that he will not be a candidate against Mr. McKinley next year, but it is also believed he is looking ahead to 1904. Mr. Reed often used to say he believed he would have been elected President if he had not lived in a corner of the United States, and hence his removal to New York is taken as his way of saying he will be a candidate in 1904.

The Speaker, though courting the support of Platt for the Presidency in 1904, seems determined to have his own way as to the selection of his successor. The moment it becomes apparent to him that he is endangering his chances for the White House, he may turn in and help Platt to land his man as Speaker.

The firm with which Speaker Reed has identified himself was formed fifteen years ago. It consists of John W. Simpson, Thomas Thacher, William M. Barnum and Philip C. Bartlett.

Mr. Simpson is a son-in-law of the late George I. Seney, and has been for years counsel for the Manhattan Trust and other corporations, as well as for Moore & Schley, and other Wall-street brokers. Thomas Thacher is a son of the late Professor Thacher of Yale University. He is a graduate of the university and of the law school, and has been frequently talked of for a United States judgeship. William H. Barnum is a son of a Yale man, having been a classmate of Frank H. Platt, son of Senator Thomas C. Platt and member of the law firm of Tracy, Boardman & Platt. Mr. Bartlett is still another Yale man. Speaker Reed has known the members of the firm for many years and has had frequent business dealings with them. Though he had received offers to go to the head of several firms, perhaps better known, he early expressed his preference for the one with which he is to be associated.

BLANCHE BATES.

Honolulu Favorite the Heroine of the Season in New York.

The heroine of the theatrical season in New York is Blanche Bates, the clever young actress whom everybody in San Francisco and Honolulu knows and has applauded many times. When the Frawley company changed its personnel a year ago Miss Bates was engaged by Augustine Daly to play second to Ada Rehan. She appeared several times with that company, and made quite a little success. As Mr. Daly did not need her for some time and Frawley was floundering here for want of a leading lady, the New York manager lent him the favorite, and she helped the Frawley season out materially. She was called to New York to play in "The Great Ruby," the London melodrama which Mr. Daly produced in the metropolis. She scored a tremendous success the first night, and surprised everybody by resigning the post and Mr. Daly's employment next day. The usual cry of Ada Rehan's jealousy came out, but Miss Bates very strenuously denied any such thing, and declared that Miss Rehan had been her warmest and most sympathetic friend, but that Mr. Daly's uncomfortable methods of treating his company were more than she could stand.

Her hit had been made and acknowledged, however, and when the Lieblers arranged for the great production in New York of "The Three Musketeers," then the success in London, with James O'Neill as D'Artagnan, they seized on Blanche Bates at once for Miladi. She made an instantaneous furor in the part, and now Blanche Bates, who modestly had prepared to work a few years in the country before she thought she would be clever enough to win in New York, is the most notable figure on the stage there.

COUGH.

Last winter during an epidemic of whooping cough my children contracted the disease, having severe coughing spells. We had used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy very successfully for croup and naturally turned to it at that time and found it relieved the cough and effected a complete cure.—John E. A Model Plant is not complete without Electric Power, thus dispensing with small engines.
Why not generate your power from one CENTRAL Station? One generator can furnish power to your Pump, Centrifugals, Elevators, Pumps, Railways and Hoists; also, furnish light and power for a radius of from 15 to 20 miles.

Electric Power being used, saves the labor of hauling coal in your field, also water, and does away with high-priced engineers, and only have one engine to look after in your mill.

Where water power is available it costs nothing to generate Electric Power.

THE HAWAIIAN ELECTRIC COMPANY is now ready to furnish Electric Plants and Generators of all descriptions at short notice, and also has on hand a large stock of Wire, Cables and Electrical Goods.

All orders will be given prompt attention, and estimates furnished for Lighting and Power Plants; also, attention is given to House and Marine Wiring.
